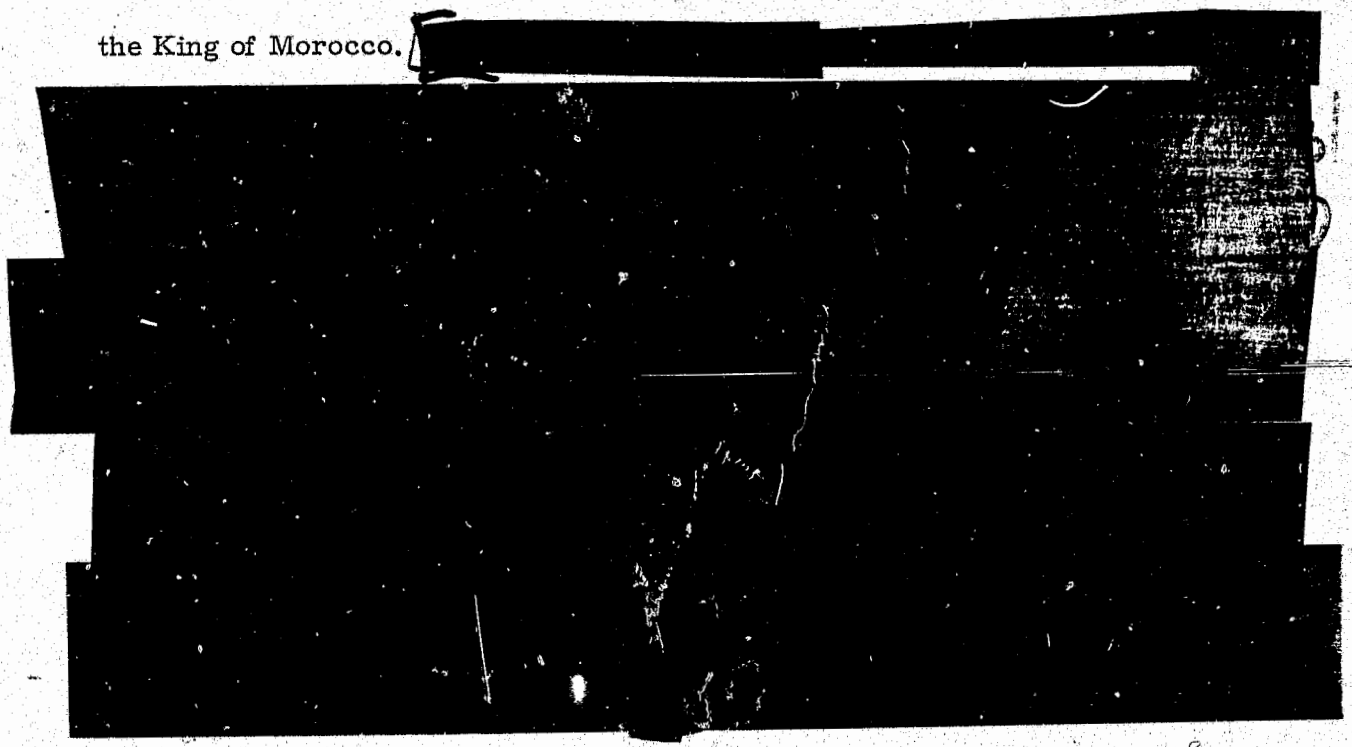
Col. Stephen Grenfell, a TV operator, reputedly a personal friend of former Ambassador Winant, came to see me about my appearing on a television program founded on President Roosevelt's Fourth Freedom. I declined this, but told him I would try to induce Averell Harriman to make such an appearance. Averell was intimately associated with these events.

I called on the Moroccan Ambassador, His Highness Prince El Hassan Ben El Mehdi. Moulay el Hassan has been Ambassador in London since the Fall of 1956. He is 50 years old. Through his grandfather, he is related to the King of Morocco.



This afternoon the Ambassador of Afghanistan paid a return call on me. He is cozy.

I went to a lecture tonight at the Institute of Strategic Studies. George Brown, MP, Shadow Cabinet Minister of Defense, was the speaker. The event took place in the beautiful little theater of the Royal United Services Institute in Whitehall. For 50 minutes Goerge outlined the steps which as spokesman for
